Airborne particulate matter air pollution has been linked to the increasing prevalence of amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (ALS), especially among nonsmoking males, and standardized mortality ratios have been used to place bounds on the risk of ALS mortality attributable to particulate pollution. However, data on the chemicals in ambient particulate matter and evidence of particulate-ALS-mortality association in epidemiologic studies that were considered in this review are either too few or too limited to be used in a quantitative risk assessment. There is currently little epidemiologic evidence on the risk of ALS attributable to endotoxins, cadmium, pesticides, polycyclic aromatic hydrocarbons, polychlorinated biphenyls, aflatoxins, benzene, organophosphates, organochlorines, and other common air pollutants. Q: How to read single line of text file and then move to the next line in c++? I am trying to read a certain line of a text file and then go to the next line. So that I can then add in the correct values to a string but it is giving an error whenever I try to do this. I also don't want to use the getline function from the inputstream, I know there's easier way. I have a.txt which has many lines of data like this: 5222 10.08 NULL NULL A NULL 7.47 83.1 I only want to read the first line of the text file, and then e79caf774b
